Please add the following new claims:

13. (new) A plural component process for coating the human body comprising the steps of:

providing a first component of a human body coating composition; providing a second component of the human body coating composition including an agent which would adversely effect the first component if mixed herewith;

maintaining the first and second components of the human body coating composition separate from one another prior to application of the composition; simultaneously mixing the first and second components of the human body coating composition and spray-applying the human body coating composition onto a human body.

14. (new) The process according to claim 13 wherein the mixing step is carried out by mixing the first and second components in a nozzle and immediately thereafter discharging the self-tanning composition from the nozzle onto the skin of a person.

15. (new) The process according to claim 13 wherein the mixing step is carried out by simultaneously discharging the first and second components of the composition from separate nozzles onto the skin of a person so that the first and second components of the composition are mixed on the skin of the person.

16. (new) A plural component self-tanning process comprising the steps of:

providing a first component of a self-tanning composition which includes dihydroxyacetone;

providing a second component of the self-tanning composition including a tan enhancing agent which would destabilize the dihydroxyacetone of the first component if mixed herewith; maintaining the first and second components of the self-tanning composition separate from one another prior to application of the self-tanning composition to effect self-tanning; and simultaneously mixing the first and second components of the self-tanning composition and spray-applying the self-tanning composition onto a human body.

17. (new) The process according to claim 16 wherein the mixing step is carried out by mixing the first and second components of the self-tanning composition in a nozzle and immediately thereafter discharging the self-tanning composition from the nozzle onto the skin of a person to be tanned.

18. (new) The process according to claim 16 wherein the mixing step is carried out by simultaneously discharging the first and second components of the self-tanning composition from separate nozzles onto the skin of a person to be tanned so that the first and second components of the self-tanning composition are mixed on the skin of the person to be tanned.
